Subject objectives	The aim of the subject is to present students with the principles of preparing a diploma thesis from the substantive and editorial perspective, regulations and principles important in the implementation of IT projects that are the subject of the diploma thesis. The possibilities of further education and undertaking second-cycle studies will be discussed. An important aim of the subject is to develop in students the skills of creating technical documents and the skills of public presentation of content related to the performance of the profession of Master of Science in Engineering using appropriate technical means and modern audiovisual aids. The aim is also to acquire the ability to clearly and precisely formulate and express the content conveyed, in accordance with the 5C principle (Clear, Complete, Correct, Courteous, Concise).
